Sat Sri Akal

Congratulations to the entire team. This is the nice interactive site in Punjabi for children since the PUNJABI language has suffered a lot at present set of Punjabi basic education. I really appreciate your hard work and purposeful effort. I liked your website too much. I have downloaded for my grandson, a student of KG Class at Akal Academy BHAJ DESA Dist. Bathinda for better understanding of MUHARNI which is a thing of the past. It will help him a lot especially the rhymes and animated stories section.

I really appreciate your hard work and purposeful effort. I liked your website too much.

Many many thanks

Kudos to you and your entire staff for excellent and scholarly site. I think it is one of a kind.

I especially appreciate the online Gurmukhi/Shahmukhi dictionary - it is the absolute BEST dictionary anywhere. Sometime I look up a word in Shahmukhi (since it is more forgiving in matras) and sometimes in Gurmukhi, but am very impressed with the coverage. I use it to understand words from Geets and Quwwalis, which make references to rustic Punjab, and sometimes to Punjab of a bygone era (Bulhey Shah's Punjab)>

Impressed that you have the following words:

1. Shinh: (Lion)
2. Bela: Forestland by river
3. Dhol, Dholan: Paramour
4. Muhaana: Boatman, ferryman
5. Jhangi: Grove, small forest.
6. Jhabde: Quickly

However, I did not find the following words:

1. BohReeN: Does it mean to help? From Bulhey Shah's Tere Ishq Nachaya:

"Jhabde bohReeN veh tabiba, NahiN te maiN mar gayee aaN"

2. Tatri, Tatti: "Heer tatti nooN teriyan tanghaaN"

Does it mean: Afflicted?

3. Koji: Kamli? From "Nit khair mangaaN sohnian main teri" by Nusrat Fateh Ali Khan.

Here is the usage: "Baajh sajan lajpal tere, Main koji aaN kehRe kamm di"

Love to hear from you. Please accept my deepest thanks and gratitude, keep the good work up!

Congrats to the team. I am using internet for more than ten years. This is the first interactive site in Punjabi for children. I am very glad to see something in my mother tongue.although Punjabi is our mother tongue yet much more work is done in UK or in Russia. animated stories are excellent. It will be better if one can see the animation on full screen (that is not difficult)and with a click anywhere. Punjabi Muharini is too fast , I will like to suggest after each sound there should be long pause so that child can repeat that word. But otherwise excellent work, ten out of ten.

I really appreciate what your team has done for the world by bringing a free Punjabi teaching program to the masses. I am a gora munda in Sacramento, California and I have a lot of friends and co workers that speak Punjabi. This website offers much more to me than any other website I have found. The audio and the Punjabi words spelled out in English letters is VERY useful. This website helps break down the intolerance and racism still found in both our cultures today. Feel free to contact me via email if there is anything I can do to help.

Dr. Lehal

ਮਾਂ ਪੰਜਾਬੀ ਸਿਖ ਦਾ ਹਾਂ and have been using your online dictionary. There are very few resources available for learning Punjabi and I appreciate your website. At www.learnpunjabi.org, you have the alphabet and other useful information, but I can not find anything explaining the different verb tenses. Do you have any information on this subject? It would make it easier to find words in the dictionary if, when I am searching for a word, I could tell what form of a verb it was using. For example, there are only a few words in your dictionary that end with ਏ and I can't determine the exact meaning. Also, regarding your dictionary, thank you for fixing the "clear" button and adding the additional search conditions. It greatly improved the chances of finding a match. I hope some day you will also add an English-Punjabi version.

The P-E version is useful when I am studying Punjabi writing. But I would use the E-P version when I am trying to figure out how to say what I want in Punjabi.

Also, I have noticed that the "Starting" option is much faster than the other conditions. I use this option when possible.

Thank you for your efforts. I have added a link to your teaching materials on my website. www.ejobe.org for others to learn Punjabi.

Hello Dr. Gurpreet Singh Ji,

It is a great gift that you have given to everyone for digitizing the Puraatan Janam Saakhi's. However, I was wondering if these Sakhi's have been translated into English because that is a an area where there has not been much development. There are many young Sikhs that cannot read Punjabi and would like to read the Janam Sakhis from a credible source. There are some Janam Sakhis online, however they are distorted during the translation process by individuals. Is it possible for your team to transcribe these same Sakhis into English for the young foreign Sikhs that would like to read the Janam Sakhis?

Sikhs need credible team like yours to help spread the message of Punjabi and Sikhi to all corners of the world.

Thanks,

I just wanted to say that I used your online dictionary today and wanted to say a very big thank you for the work you are doing. My parents are from the Pakistani side of the border so it was very useful to find that you included the Shahmukhi script. My Punjabi could be better but I do love the old classic folk songs and they serve as an incentive to improve my punjabi.

Keep up the good work and don't let the language die :-)

I still need help with conjugating the verb tenses. Is there an area on this site that can give me the conjugations of the most commonly used verbs? If not, are you aware of an existing website that has charts of the conjugations?

Thank you again for all your hard work!

Sat Sri Akal Ji,

First of all I would like to thank the organization (Maharani Preneet Kaur Ji) for donating the funds to come up with a very valuable website not only for the Punjabi community, but for those also who want to learn Punjabi on their own. Secondly, thanks to all those members and volunteers who have put their endless hours in creating such a knowledgeable site. Question: I am a high school teacher in Toronto, Canada, and also I teach Punjabi at our Gurudwara on the weekends. I want to know if I have your permission to use the material from the site in creating worksheets for the students.

Thanks for your time.

Good morning Dr. Lehal,

I would like to thank you and your team for the wonderful work on the website. My students use yur website. I also have adults who are using your website.

The rhymes that have been included are very helpful. Do you plan to add more?

thanks again,

Rapinder Rai

My name is Balwinder Singh and I live in San Antonio, TX - USA. We like your site very much. We are trying to use this site to teach Pujabi at our Gurdwara Sahib to American born young Sikhs. However, some time we take classes in remote area where Internet signal is not great. Can we have a CD version of your site? We are willing to pay what ever the fee and shipping charges may be.

Thanks a lot in advance.

Dear Gurpreet Singh Ji

Sat Siri Akal

I would like send my appreciation for the most useful Panjabi teaching resources which you have prepared for the development of Panjabi language. I just happened to go to a Conference about two weeks ago and there I found out about your Web site. I must say that these resources will be very useful for Panjabi teachers all over the world.

I would also like to know if you or anybody else has prepared resources for Examination classes. I have pupils taking examination in Panjabi GCSE and A' levels which are equivalent to Plus two and Degree Level examinations in India. In these examination they have to translate text (both from and into Panjabi), handle comprehension passages, write letters, essays and articles etc etc. This information will be very useful for myself and of course for the pupils too.

Thank you in anticipation for your support and I hope to hear from you soon

With Kind regards

In Punjabi quizzes it will be better to add punjabi equivalent instead of right and wrong. It is great work and all government school must be informed about that. We should try to add it as part of course in computer teaching class in all govt schools.

Sat Sri Akaal Ji.

This is a great effort on your part. I am amazed at the presentation of punjabi boli. Keep it up! I do have a suggestion about the quizzes. I looked up one for numbers. In response to the quiz answers, there is a right or wrong sound. If these sounds in the background could be improved a little, it'll be a big help for the learner, specially if it is a kid. Example: For right, we can use more options like excellent, good, well done etc. And instead of using the word wrong for an incorrect answer, we can use try again, one more time etc.

Thanks again.

I want to thank you for developing such a good website to learn punjabi. While going through it, i noticed these: 1. sihari giving sound of 'dirag' bihari as: eiree sihari: ei shouldn't it be eiree sihari: ay, 'dirag' laan. its same for all other akhars. 2. Aunkar giving sound of 'dirag' Dilankar as: Sassa aunkar: Su shouldn't it be sassa aunkar: so giving sound of 'dirag' hora. and its same for all akhars. Again i don't have words to thank your team for such a good effort of developing this site.

Students who make this their first choice of study for vocabulary could potentially learn an even greater vocabulary quicker by allowing them to be conversant sooner.

I first would like to commend you on this ground breaking initiative. As a child born in a Canadian Diaspora, I have often felt that such work was necessary. As an adult with children I now feel it imperative that such work gets done. I have studied Punjabi and written an M.A. at University of British Columbia in Vancouver, B.C., Canada. I have also helped develop some curriculum for panjabi. My daughter has studied at a local Public school where punjabi is taught as a second language. What I wanted to suggest is that the stories you provide do not have english translations under them. While one may assume that this facilitates learning, it in fact debilitates it because the learner will naturally gravitate to their first or natural language. It is better to provide a single text that the learner will have to struggle with in order to decode and understand. English is not the norm and we, as Punjabi speakers, should not use it as a crutch to help people learn our language.

Sincerely,

Harjeet Grewal

Wahe Guru Ji Ka Khalsa

Wahe Guru Ji Ki Fateh,

Gurpreet Singh Lehal Ji,

Wow thank you! I love this site. I intend to make an effort to learn Punjabi some time in the future, hopefully during the few months my friend Ravinder is visiting from NYC (he's fluent in Punjabi). I think your site will be one of my main resources. I learned how to read Gurmukhi when I was a teenager and I use to to read my banis and from the Guru, but I found that some of the few books out there (the one's that make outrageous claims to teach you Punjabi in 30 days or so) they somehow think that the learner will still be learning Gurmukhi as they get to the further lessons. Your site is nice in that it offers people who are still learning Gurmukhi the chance to see the transliteration, but it does not over-emphasize this in the vocabulary and sentence sections. You are doing a great service for the panth of the English speaking world.

Thanks,

I am a teacher in Canada, and i teach two blocks of Punjabi to students aged 9-12. I came across your website and I love it. I just wanted to commend you on it. It makes my job easier, and it's great to have the kids interact with the language, rather than the typical boring ways of teaching. Also, I was wondering if your site had anything on Diwali, or any of the festivals? Perhaps that would be something to add, maybe as a story?

Thanks again,

Hello Dr. Lehal,

I am a teacher of Punjabi in Abbotsford, Canada and have used your website with my students and want to say that it is an excellent resource. Thank you for making it available.

I would like to know if there is somewhere where I can download the Punjabi keyboard converter. What I am looking for is the Punjabi keyboard the students can see on their screen and instead of using the keyboard on the computer to type they would just click on the letters on the keyboard that is on the screen. What I'm looking for is the keyboard you use when looking at the Punjabi morphological analyzer and generator link.

Thank you very much.

Dear Team (behind learnpunjabi.org)

Today a friend of mine sent me an e-mail with the link of this website. I found it very-very impressive. I personally do not have any problem with Punjabi I but if I look around at the people who are keen to learn Punjabi and about Sikhism, I think it could be a great help. I live in London, every other day there are programs on TV about India and its culture but few of them just do not give the right picture to the people(thats what I believe). For example telling people that we are still stuck in cast ism and people from minorities or lower casts are underprivileged.

I do agree its true up to some extent but would say those are execptional cases. Am I right, Prof. Lehal? My other half has been living here for last 20 years so basically does not know about the Indian living and he believes all that BBC shows on TV is true. Its does not make me feel very happy. Any way I would say its a job very well done. And in a way this website shows people work together in my India and bring out the excellent results. I would like to thanks you all, I think what you are doing is something great and very thoughtful .

Warm regards to the "learn punjabi" team.

I should like to know whether the Punjabi University has an online or electronic version of its Punjabi-English dictionary. If not are there any plans to make one? I think this would be an excellent project. It could also have a thesaurus and verb conjugator as well.

Hi,

It was nice to view the website. I am a Delhi resident with only basic punjabi knowledge, moving to Patiala for a teaching job. Your website is comprehensive and helpful in learning to write basic punjabi. However, I am more interested in learning spoken punjabi quickly, while I am slowly working on my written punjabi. My suggestion is that you include a page/section on advanced punjabi vocabulary. something like a dictionary of more complex punjabi words and sentences/phrases, which are used in day-to-day life. It wouldbe very helpful.

Thanks!

This is the only useful resource on the internet for learning Punjabi language. I regularly visit this website to help my 2 year old son learn the language. It caters well to the needs of Punjabi parents abroad in countries such as US. Access to limited resources abroad makes it very difficult to teach punjabi to kids. Great job/effort on part of Punjab University of Patiala! However, sometimes I wish the site could be more children friendly and interactive. For example, I find the following site " www.pbskids.org" very exciting and friendly. Even my 2 year old son likes it. Please keep up the good work!

First of all I want to congratulate you (The Team) for developing such a wonderful web site to teach Punjabi to anyone interested. I am a mother/teacher in US, teaching Punjabi to English speaking children. I have found 'talking stories' especially helpful in encouraging the children to read/listen to the stories which are written in small sentences and narrate them back to peers/teachers/parents in Punjabi. I will really appreciate if more stories can be added there. May I suggest a series of lekh/saakhiyaan on Gurus (like SGPC has dharam pothies)...that will serve as 'Ik panth do kaaj' ...learning punjabi along with gurmatt. Thank you for your consideration! May Guru continue to bless you with this mahaan SEWA!

But we need some help as to how to utilise it properly and when we go to the homepage, what do we do next. Alongwith translating to punjabi, does this website also helps in improving spoken punjabi? If so. Then how can we do that?

I am delighted to see that this much have been done for Punjabi Language when i came across whole reading online DAILY AJIT JALLANDHAR (<http://www.advancedcentrepunjabi.org/>) Being away from home i felt long back that very less was done for the same.

As a normal user of punjabi language , i developed love for it when i saw that other nationalities who are working with me in same University here ,have great love for their native language.

And when ever there was any query about Punjabi language i was not able to handle it sucessfully. But now with this website i can refer and give this website to them.

I know that i can't contribute much to this good cause , but here i would like to convey my heart felt wishes and congrats to all the team members.

Spcial cheers for the members of team who worked to put it on net.

This is an excellent website to teach punjabi. I will be using this extensively in my efforts to help my daughter learn punjabi. Thank you.

Subject: Suggestion for your new Punjabi website.

To: advancedcentrepunjabi@gmail.com

Sat Sri Akal,

I think your new Punjabi learning website is very good and probably the best on the internet. However, one suggestion that would help people like me trying to discover their mother tongue would be as follows.. Can you please add a sound recording of the alphabet in sections. For example, the pronunciation of the first 5 letters of the punjabi alphabet all in one go, so you can listern to it, learn to memorise it and understand the rythme of the letters one after another. Then the next 5 letters etc until the end of the alphabet. With may be a visual of the letters as they being pronounced. This way you can quickly pick up sections of the alphabet by listerning and repeating. At the moment, it is very hard for someone who is English educated to make a connection once you have learnt one letter to the next. Once you learn to sing the alphabet as I'm proposing it is easier to then proceed to the more indepth visuals with slower sound recording on how to write the letter individually already on your website. If I were trying to teach you English. I would teach you to sing the alphabet first in sections. As they do in English schools. Once you have this memorised the whole alphabet, its easier to go through the letters to learn to pronouce the sounds. After this, would be the learning of words etc Please accept my suggestions as improvements that could be made to probably the best Punjabi teaching website than anything else. Please let me know if my suggests will be implemeted.

Hello,

Well Done, i was going through your website on punjabi, and you have put up the basics very nicely, especially the flash animation for tutoring punjabi writing. I have lived in chandigarh/mohali area for 2 years, and been to patiala a few times, and thats how i got interested in this site. Its a joy to see something so Indian in a long time. I'm far away from home, homesick, and miss my family and friends, but this is something that should gladden then heart of any punjabi speaker.... for the record, i am not punjabi, not even born there, i am marathi, but 2 years have embossed punjab as my own land in my heart. i have tried painstakingly to learn the language. but in vain. i think i can derive some rudiments from here. Thank you, i wish to convey my sentiments of gratefulness to all those who concieved the idea for this wonderful effort. keep up the good work.

Dr. Lehal,

Heartiest Congratulations of introducing the website for learning punjabi. I was reading online The Tribune that new website has been launched (no website link in news but I found it). It is really useful for the kids who are born outside india. My kids wants to learn punjabi and now they can utilize the website. I have not gone through too much into it just got glimpse of website and feels it would be very useful.

Congratulations again from my family also.

Regards.
